League Philosophy

The Tri-City In-Line Hockey League Philosophy

The Tri-City In-Line Hockey League has looked to other sports in the community to see how the sporting events are run. We took the best from each to try to find the best way to run the league. The philosophy of USA Hockey In-Line and the National Youth Sports Coaches Association played heavily in the formation of our league. All coaches and officials are certified and live up to the standards of their certification organization.

The league and its members are also members of USA Hockey In-Line Association. USA Hockey In-Line provides sanctioning, guidance, and rules and regulations for the league. The NYSCA philosophies, in conjunction with the USA Hockey In-Line guidance, helps provide a fun, fast paced sport that each player equally participates in.

The main guiding philosophies are:

- ♦ Balanced teams

Each participant is rated in several skills categories and assigned a number. Teams are selected based on the total skill levels of the child. Each team might have one super-star, and two or three very talented individuals. The remainder of the team is made up of average and beginner players. The purpose of balanced teams is to allow each team and player the chance to be competitive in every game. A league that is balanced will have each contest fairly close. Each team should have a fair chance to win a given game.

- ♦ Every participant plays at least ten minutes of the game.

Nothing hurts a child's self-esteem more than "riding the pines". Not only do their skills not improve, but neither does their love of the game. Hockey is a game where each child has to participate because of the sprinting nature of the game. Each child skates close to the same number of shifts per game and the shifts are usually about the same amount of time.

Skills, team-work, and sportsmanship are more important than winning.

The pressure to win, when forced on by parents and coaches takes the fun out of the game. It tends to give the better players more of an opportunity to play and discriminates against the lesser skilled players. Many times, sportsmanship is lost in the quest for the win. Winning is important, but not at the cost of hurting a child's development, both mentally and physically.

- ♦ The Zero Tolerance Rule is Strongly Adhered to!

Message from TCIHL's Board Of Directors

Tri-City In-Line Hockey League Opens a Rink in Oceanside!

Tri-City players are now enjoying playing their first season on the new rink. Coaches and players have had to learn new strategies to realize the advantages of playing on a full-sized hockey rink. Our players skills have grown just by playing at the new facility.

The opening of this wonderful facility could not have happened without tireless efforts of Pat Conboy, Phil Sandner, Bob Stok, Claude Mueller and their families. In addition, many coaches and league parents worked countless hours to create this state-of-the-art in-line hockey rink.

Tri-City players now have a safe and family-oriented place to play!
